DESCRIPTION

This elective course addresses two important aspects of medical student training: first, improving patient care skills by addressing the spiritual care of patients and second, promoting medical student wellbeing and resilience. It provides an opportunity for students to develop the skills to process the emotions that arise in caring for acutely ill and dying patients, to explore how their own background, attitudes and beliefs inform their motivation for a career in medicine and how attending to meaning- and purpose-oriented aspects of themselves such as their spirituality can influence their approach to coping with the rigors of clinical training.

This rotation teaches students to develop patient care and interpersonal skills that can enable them to become a ‘healing presence’ for their patients and colleagues and to skillfully navigate interpersonal and family dynamics in a clinical setting. Students develop active listening skills and learn to critically reflect on patient interviews to understand how their interviewing technique can open or shut down communication and how to continually improve. By turning the focus on meaning and relationship-oriented questions that arise during patient care, students will be uniquely equipped to thrive personally and professionally despite the challenges of training and in the face of challenging patient encounters.

Note: During the training provided in this course, spirituality is approached broadly, from expressions spanning the continuum of strict religious observance to feelings of oneness in nature. The goal is to provide an inclusive environment so that all students can meaningfully participate regardless of their own spiritual beliefs and can learn to serve patients of diverse spiritual perspectives.
